"All Or None" Wilson Stand On Treaty

Action Of President Sure To Make Pact An Issue In The Elections This Year

SENATE CONTINUES ITS DEBATE

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9.—The League as it stands or no league at all, is the way President Wilson sees it, in the opinion of Democratic and Republican senators today in discussing Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Discussion of President Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock refusing a treaty compromise broke out in the Senate today soon after it met. Lodge, the Republican leader, opened debate. At the same time the efforts to agree on the compromise of Article Ten reservation continued. A new reservation was agreed upon by Republican leaders, including Lodge and was accepted by some Democrats. Whether a sufficient number of Democrats will agree to it is not yet apparent. It will be offered by the Republicans however whether they are assured of the support of the Democratic vote or not.

Text of Wilson's Letter
The text of the President's letter to Senator Hitchcock follows:

The White House,
Washington, 8 March, 1920

"My dear Senator Hitchcock—I understand that one or two of your colleagues do me the honor of desiring to know what my views are with reference to Article X of the League of Nations and the effect upon the league of the adoption of certain proposed reservations to that article. I welcome the opportunity to throw any light I can upon a subject which has become so singularly beset by misapprehensions and misinterpretations of every kind.

"There is no escaping the moral obligations which are expressed in positive terms in this article of the covenant. We won a moral victory over Germany far greater even than the military victory won on the field of battle, because the opinion of the whole world swung to our support and the support of the nations associated with us in the great struggle. It did so because of our common profession and promise that we meant to establish an organization of peace which should make it certain that the combined power of free nations would check every invasion of right and serve to make peace and justice the more secure by affording a definite tribunal of opinion to which all must submit and by which every international readjustment that cannot be amicably agreed upon by the peoples directly concerned shall be sanctioned.

"This promise and assurance were written into the preliminaries of the armistice and into the preliminaries of the peace itself, and constitute one of the most sacred obligations ever assumed by any nation or body of nations. It is unthinkable that America should set the example of ignoring such a solemn moral engagement.

"Pledges to Soldiers"

"For myself I feel I could not look the soldiers of our gallant armies in the face again if I did not do everything in my power to remove every obstacle that lies in the way of the adoption of this particular article of the covenant because we made these pledges to them as well as to the rest of the world and it was to this cause they deemed themselves devoted in a spirit of crusaders. I should be forever unfaithful to them if I did not do my utmost to fulfill the high purpose for which they fought.

"I think my dear senator we can dismiss from our minds the idea that it is necessary to stipulate in connection with Article X the constitutional methods we should use in fulfilling our obligations under it. We gain nothing by such stipulation and secure nothing which is not already secured. It was understood as a matter of course at the conference in Paris that whatever obligations any government assumed or whatever duties it undertook under the treaty would of course, have to be fulfilled by its usual and established constitutional methods of action. Once or twice in meetings of the conference, when the treaty was under consideration 'reservations' were made to that effect by the representatives of individual powers and those 'reservations' were invariably received in the way in which men who have met for business and not for talk always receive acts of scrupulous supererogation listened to with indifferent silence, as such men listen to what is a matter of course and was not necessary to say.

"There can be no objection to explaining again what our constitutional method is and that our Congress alone can declare war or determine the causes or occasions for war, and that it alone can authorize the use of the armed forces of the United States on land or on sea. But to make such a declaration would certainly be a work of supererogation.

Called Virtual Nullification

"I am sorry to say that the reservations that have come under my notice are almost without exception not interpretations of the articles to which it is proposed to attach them, but in effect virtual nullification of those articles.

"Any reservation which seeks to deprive the League of Nations of the force of Article X cuts at the very heart and life of the covenant itself. Any League of Nations which does not guarantee as a matter of incontestable right the political independence and integrity of each of its members might be hardly more than a futile scrap of paper as ineffective in operation as the agreement between Belgium and Germany which the Germans violated in 1914. Article X as written into the treaty of Versailles represents the renunciation by Great Britain and Japan, which before the war had begun to find so many interests in common in the Pacific; by France, by Italy, by all the great fighting powers of the world of the old pretensions of political conquest and territorial aggrandizement. It is a new doctrine in the world's affairs, and must be recognized or there is no secure basis for the peace which the whole world so longingly desires and so desperately needs.

"If Article X is not adopted and acted upon the governments which reject it will, I think, be guilty of bad faith to their people whom they induced to make the indefinite sacrifices of the war by the pledge that they would be fighting to redeem the world from the old order of force and aggression. They will be acting also in bad faith to the opinion of the world at large to which they appealed for support in a concerted stand against the aggressions and pretensions of Germany.

"If we were to reject Article X or so to weaken it as to take its full force out of it, it would mark us as desiring to return to the old world of jealous rivalry and misunderstanding, from which our gallant soldiers have rescued us, and would leave us without any vision or new conception of justice and peace. We will have learned no lesson from the war, but gained only the regret that it had involved us in its maelstrom of suffering. If America has awakened as the rest of the world has to the vision of a new day in which the mistakes of the past are to be corrected, it will welcome the opportunity to share the responsibilities of Article X.

"Wrong Ambitions Renounced"

"It must not be forgotten, Senator, that this article constitutes a renunciation of wrong ambition on the part of powerful nations with whom we were associated in the war. It is by no means certain that without this article any such renunciation will take place. Militaristic ambitions and imperialistic policies are by no means dead even in the councils of the nations whom we most trust and with whom we most desire to be associated in the tasks of peace. Throughout the sessions of the conference in Paris it was evident that a militaristic party under the most influential leadership was seeking to gain ascendancy in the councils of France. They were defeated then, but are in control now. The chief arguments advanced in Paris in support of the Italian claims on the Adriatic were strategic arguments, which had at their back the thought of naval supremacy in that sea. For my own part I am as intolerant of imperialistic designs on the part of other nations as I was of such designs on the part of Germany.

"The choice is between two ideals: One on the one hand, the ideal of democracy, which presents the rights of free peoples everywhere to govern themselves; and on the other hand the ideal of imperialism which seeks to dominate by force and unjust power; an ideal which is by no means dead and which is earnestly held in many quarters still. Every imperialistic influence in Europe was hostile to the embodiment of Article X in the covenant of the League of Nations, and its defeat now would mark the complete consummation of their efforts to nullify the treaty. I hold the doctrine of Article X to be the essence of Americanism. We cannot repudiate it or weaken it without at the same time repudiating our own principles.

"The imperialist wants no league of nations, but if in response to the universal cry of the masses everywhere there is to be one he is interested to secure one suited to his own purposes one that will permit him to continue the historic game of pawns and peoples—the juggling of provinces the old balances of power and the inevitable wars attendant upon these things.

Fight Centered on Article X

"The reservation proposed would perpetuate the old order. Does any one really want to see the old game played again? Can any one really venture to take part in reviving the old order? The enemies of a league of nations have by very true instinct captured this point against Article X, for it is undoubtedly the foundation of the whole structure. It is the bulwark, and the only bulwark of the rising democracy of the world against the forces of imperialism and reaction.

"Either we should enter the league fearlessly, accepting the responsibility and not fearing the role of leadership which we now enjoy, contributing our efforts toward establishing a just and permanent peace, or we should retire as gracefully as possible from the great concert of powers by which the world was saved. For my own part, I am not willing to trust to the counsel of diplomats the working out of any salvation of the world from the things which it has suffered.

"I believe that when the full significance of this great question has been generally apprehended, obstacles will seem insignificant before opportunity, a great and glorious opportunity, to contribute your overwhelming moral and material force to the establishment of an international regime in which our own ideals of justice and right may be made to prevail and the nations of the world would be allowed a peaceful development under conditions of order and safety hitherto impossible.

"I need not say, senator, that I have given a great deal of thought to the whole matter of reservations proposed in connection with the ratification of the treaty, and particularly that portion of the treaty which contains the covenant of the League of Nations, and I have been struck by the fact that practically every so-called reservation was in effect a rather sweeping nullification of the terms of the treaty itself. I hear of reservationists and mild reservationists but I cannot understand the difference between a nullifier and a mild nullifier. Our responsibility as a nation in this turning point of history is an overwhelming one, and if I had the opportunity I would beg every one concerned to consider the matter in the lights of what it is possible to accomplish for humanity rather than in the light of special national interests.

"If I have been truly informed concerning the desire of some of your colleagues to know my views in this matter, I would be very glad if you should show this letter to them.

STOCK OPENINGS

NEW YORK, March 9.—The stock market opened higher today. Most of the leading issues continued the upward trend or held their gains of yesterday except Crucible which yielded two points to 225 and Southern Pacific which was off 4, at 99. General Motors gained 4 points opening at 205, United States rubber at 108½ up ½. Reading at 77½ up ½. Republic at 95½ up ½.

THIS WIDE, WIDE WORLD IS SMALL PLACE AFTER ALL

Erstwhile Clearfielder Turns Up At The Necessary Moment At Other Side of The Earth

"THE OLD MAN FAVORED ME"

This is a little old world after all, and the fellow who told us during the free silver campaign of 1896 that "on he instant a man embarked in the banking business the milk of human kindness straightway began to dry up in his breast," was drawing the long bow a little too strong. At least one would be led to believe the truth of both of the above statements after reading the tale we will attempt to pass along to you herewith. Some hoary-headed old philosopher or sage of the long ago observed that "the evil men do lives after them, while he good is interred with their bones." We find from our observations that this is not always the case, also that even the banker—the fellow who comes in for the severest criticism from the crack-brained agitator who refrains from all effort to feed the world by his own labors, while endeavoring to save it with his mouth—has his good traits along with newspaper reporters and the other 'salt of the earth,' and will on occasion go out of his road to do a favor that sticks in the other fellow's crop or memory 'til time and opportunity, as they sometimes have a way of doing, allows him to get even by returning that favor on the principle of the return of the broad east upon the waters of the stream of life.

Our erstwhile Clearfield banker friend, E. E. Lindemuth, was a Clearfield visitor over Sunday and, while enjoying a chat over old times and old friends, he inadvertently gave us the text for our philosophization and in telling the story as we remember it you will get the application.

Upon inquiry concerning his eldest son Lloyd, Mr. Lindemuth informed us that the young man—a Clearfield high school graduate who has made every good in his battle with the world—was now engaged in assisting in the erection of a steel mill in far-off India, his engineering concern having sent him to the other side of the world on a three year mission.

He left the United States in November of 1918. He arranged for his wife to follow him and Mrs. Lindemuth started on her long journey early in 1919. She was traveling on Cook's tour ticket; when she reached Hong Kong, China, was chagrined to find that the passenger steamer she was scheduled to take, had departed for Calcutta and there would be no possible chance of her getting another boat for at least one month.

Thirty days alone in a foreign town on the other side of the world at a $9.00 per day hotel, was a situation to appall the stoutest heart and it is needless to add that the young woman was greatly worried over her predicament. After exhausting every effort possible without avail, Mrs. Lindemuth was about to give up in despair, when a fellow-American guest at the hotel, noting his countrywoman's distress, made bold to inquire the cause and to offer his assistance.

The story of the unfortunate departure of the boat and the month's wait for another was soon told, the distressed traveler ending her recital by giving her name and explaining the reason for her long journey alone from the States.

When the friend in need said "Do you happen to know E. E. Lindemuth of Clearfield and Bradford," Mrs. Lindemuth promptly replied, "Why, he's my father-in-law."

The gentleman, Charles W. Mills, who was superintendent of the powder mill at the creek when it was destroyed by the fire the last time, and was afterwards secretary of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Operators' Association, then said, "Well, I not only know the old man well, but I owe him a favor or two and will endeavor to repay in part at least by seeing 'hat we can do to help you out of your difficulty."

Mr. Mills hustled right down to the shipping offices and by that manner of means known only to energetic, hustling American business men, soon had arrangements made for the stranded traveler to embark from Hong Kong most comfortably quartered on a freighter, and the journey

"JONAH" WISE AND THE CATFISH

Jack Wise, of the Riverside Hotel, is the hero of the first fish story for the season of 1920. The funny part of Jack's story, too, is that it is all true. When the ice went out of the river on Saturday last, water to a depth of three feet was backed into the Riverside cellar, by means of the sewer emptying into the dam in front of the New York Central station. Yesterday morning the water had subsided to such an extent that Jack donned his rubber boots and went downstairs for the purpose of starting a little fire in the boiler. The pit in front of the boiler contained about fifteen inches of water and when Jack went sloshing about in the water to his knees, something dashed against one of his legs, but he paid no attention to it and when it hit him on the other side he gave it only passing notice. Finally whatever it was dashed between his legs and then Jack, with visions of a sea serpent wrapping about his spindly shanks, let out a yell which startled the natives. Plunging his hands down into the water to wrench the supposed "sea serpent" from around his running gear, he grasped something and heaving as he yelled and fell back into the water, he threw a fifteen-inch catfish across the cellar onto the coal pile.

Help arrived by this time, alarmed by the commotion and Jack and the catfish were soon rescued alive.

The big fish is on display at the Riverside and many travelers stop and look it over and listen to Jack's tearful tale. He said he thought at first it was something that escaped from an empty "bar liquor" barrel floating about in the cellar, but being on a cold water diet long enough to see things in their true light he quickly recovered, but it was some sight.

LET US SAVE OUR TEARS FOR AWHILE

The destruction of the Deer Creek and Rollingstone bridges will no doubt entail considerable expense to the county of Clearfield, but there doesn't appear to be a very good or much reason for anybody getting hysterical or getting up on his hind legs with the death rattle howl in his throat. It is thought the county may be able to pull through with careful nursing.

For general information it might not be out of place to remark that these two bridges were each approximately 340 feet long. They were of two span trussed steel construction with 18-foot driveways.

The Deer Creek bridge was built in 1889 by Graham and Girard townships and was taken over as a county bridge in 1916 under an order of the Clearfield county courts. Because the two townships named had the bridge constructed no record of its first cost is available on the county records.

The Rollingstone bridge was built by the county in 1891 and the price paid for the bridge proper without the pier and abutments being included was $5,435. The stone work would add possibly $1500 or $2000 to that total.

BANDITS RAID MISSOURI BANK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9.—Three bank attaches were shot, one fatally, when four unmasked bandits attempted to hold up the South Side bank here today.

Getting Rid of House Pests.

Cockroaches or the "crotch bug" may be held in check by setting out two saucers, one containing a mixture of flour and plaster paris and the other filled with water. The mixture should be four parts plaster of paris and one part of flour. Badly infested apartments may be thoroughly ridged of this pest by fumigating with hydrocyanic acid gas.

was completed in due time without further disquieting incident.

Now, if you have followed us through this tale, which will surprise Mr. Lindemuth when he reads it, don't you agree with us that this old world is really a small place. Also, isn't it a remarkable coincidence that Mr. Mills should turn up at the necessary moment away on the other side of the world, to return a favor granted years before in the usual humdrum business life of a little Pennsylvania town some sixteen thousand miles distant? "We'll say she do."

SEVEN MILE ICE JAM MENACES CLEARFIELD: SHOULD BE BROKEN UP AT ONCE

Some alarm is being felt in Clearfield over an ice jam in the river which extends practically and almost solidly from Shawville bridge up to a point in the river opposite the New York Central round house below the tannery. The intervening distance by the river is more than seven miles, so some idea of the body of ice impounded by the bridge piers and falling water may be secured.

The jam has already succeeded in damming or backing the water up beyond the dam at the New York Central station and some apprehension is being felt as to just what will be the result when the next high water arrives.

It is said the upper ice is jammed at Lumber City and Curry Run and if these jams break loose and come down as is usually the case, before the Shawville jam can leave Clearfield and the New York Central yards will be in for a huge headwater flood. There is some talk of an attempt being made to dynamite the ice at several points between Clearfield and Shawville in the hope of breaking and shattering it to such an extent that the first little rise will melt and float it out, and some signs of the kind should undoubtedly be taken. It would prove to be a money matter, in any event.

ADMIRAL SIMS SCORES DANIELS IN INQUIRY BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The war was prolonged four months by failure of the Navy Department to act promptly on recommendations of the Allied naval authorities and himself, Rear Admiral Simms declared today before the Senate Naval Affairs sub-committee, testifying in its probe of the naval war work.

"In the war," he said, "the navy took a 'hand to mouth' policy." Sims, who was the first witness called, criticized the American Naval College and Secretary Daniels and declared that:

The Navy failed to co-operate fully with the Allies, resulting in needless sacrifices.

That Sims' efforts at team work were "delayed or nullified."

That Daniels committed an outrage

in making public one of Sims' letters regarding Admiral Wilson and various other naval officers and then sent it by radio.

That "a campaign of deliberate propaganda" had been reported to Sims by Daniels to belittle Sims.

The big committee hearing room was crowded with naval officers and spectators.

In his statement, Sims held emphasis on the fact that one of his tasks in London was to digest the Allied naval experience of the war and make recommendations based on them.

Sims was applauded as he took his seat at the Senate table. He was flanked by half a dozen high naval officers and an aid sat at his left with a high pile of documents for the Admiral's use.

WOMEN OF PENNSYLVANIA ANXIOUS TO LEARN WHEN VOTE WILL COME

HARRISBURG, March 9. (United Press.)—Women of Pennsylvania this week were looking to Attorney-General William I. Schaffer to decide just what their status will be when the required number of states formally ratify the Federal Amendment. There are but three of the required number of states yet to ratify.

The Attorney-General's department has been in a turmoil over the question for several weeks. Deputies have been in conference at various times trying to decide how, should the Attorney-General allow the women a vote at the primaries and general election this year, the required additional machinery could be put into motion.

Reported obstacles in the way of ratification of the federal amendment

have resulted in women's organizations being much perturbed. These reports, it was said by politicians at the Capitol today, are based on the suggestion that while in states where the primary is held in April the women, if allowed to vote, would insist that they cast their ballots at the primary and thereby place a serious difficulty before the election officials.

The question in the whole which is taking the limelight at Capital Hill, is whether ratification of the federal amendment would prohibit the women from voting or whether they automatically become voters through the abolishment of the sex distinction as was done by the Pennsylvania Commission on Constitutional Revision and Amendment.

COURT NOTES

The "divorce bug" again seems to be epidemic in Clearfield county, the records of the Prothonotary's office showing no less than six divorce applications entered within the past two days.

On Monday Chase & Chase began two suits as follows:

Elizabeth Mascho wants to be relieved of the legal injunction to "love, honor and obey" her husband Leo Mascho, because the actions of the husband and his treatment of her makes it impossible so to do. They were married October 12, 1910 and the husband deserted December 23, 1918.

James W. Oliver reverses the usual order of things and seeks a divorce from Millie Oliver because of her cruel and barbarous treatment of the complainant forcing him to leave her on February 15, 1920, after having married her June 27, 1916.

James A. Gleason, Esq., began suit on behalf of Ruby E. Matthews, who asks a divorce from Ernest L. Matthews. She says they were married July 25, 1912, but the husband's cruel and barbarous treatment forced her to withdraw from his home February 23, 1920. The statement filed also alleges that Matthews was very prodigal in the bestowal of his affections and names Marie Brown as co-respondent in the case.

MAINTENANCE MEN AND SHOPWORKERS WILL NOT STRIKE

CHICAGO, March 9.—A threatened railway strike was averted here today when maintenance and shop workers voted to remain with the other railroad workers organizations. Their wage demands will go before the President's commission with those of the other bodies. The vote by which the grand lodge decided the course of the 400,000 members was not announced.

HERE'S A HERO, LADIES

CHICAGO, March 9.—State Senator William Block, of West Virginia, left here by special train at noon today, to save women suffrage in his state from a dead lock. Block took the train instead of an airplane, as his wife objected to the danger of an aeroplane trip. He said he would reach Charleston in ample time to vote ratifying the suffrage amendment.

IN A GILBERTIAN SENSE

By S. E. KISER

"Twas on the porch where the White House looms
That I saw an elderly man,
And I heard him say in a peevish way:
"They think I can't but I can!"

"There are wilful men who have tried their worst
To jumble the plans I've made;
But I'll show them yet that I never let
My one-track mind be swayed.

"The Constitution's no bar to me;
I've put it upon the shelf;
I'm a laddy-buck and a muck-a-muck,
And I'm running things all myself.

"I've given Lansing and Colonel House
And others the word to go
And before I'm through I'll show Congress, too,
That whatever I say is so."

He heaved a sigh that was long and deep,
And his look became hard and cold,
And he blinked a blink and appeared to think
It was doing him good to scold.

"I've a rod in pickle for Lodge," he said,
"And I never will yield a jot;
I'm ruling still with an iron will,
In spite of the scurvy lot.

"I'm the greatest man that ever was born;
I'm a prophet and potentate;
I'm the Cabinet, too, and the whole blamed crew
In charge of the Ship of State.

"I know all things; it is I alone
Who can see what is right or wrong;
I've nothing to learn, and I'm glad to spurn
The advice that is passed along.

"For I am the crew and the captain bold;
I can't do a foolish act,
And I'll eat my hand if I understand
Why any one doubts the fact!"

OST OF HOME GARDENING ONLY A LITTLE BIT HIGHER

But the Back Yard Food Producer Gains Much More in the Value of His Vegetables

Food prices are high, but food grown in home gardens costs comparatively little more than before prices began to ascend. This additional reason for home gardening in 1920 is put forward by specialists of the United States department of agriculture. They quote a letter from a New York business man. He wrote:

"Food costs today are practically double those of 1914, but the cost to plant and care for a home garden has not increased to any considerable extent. The clerk salesman or professional man who grows his own vegetables and small fruits reduces the family food bill. More important still, he increases the total food supply of the country. He enters the producing class. To a very appreciable extent the home gardener can solve the high cost of living."

How can the man who never gardened learn how to garden? One good way is to write to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., or to his State College of agriculture for a bulletin that describes every step in making a back yard or vacant lot help feed his family.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

SOME LIGHT ON BOLSHEVISM

Movement Not Anarchistic, as So Many Seem to Think—Probably is Best Described as "Consistent Socialism."

Article XIII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

If I were asked to name the principal cause for the growing unrest in answer would be bolshevism. The almost universal attitude of big business toward Russian bolshevism—an attitude adopted by most of the governments of Europe—has been, and is, kill it; don't waste time examining it; it isn't worth trying to understand; no good can come out of it; it must be fought; it isn't entitled to a trial. Reams of paper have been used to assail it. Captains of industry and government officials have vied with each other in making assault on it. Many of those who oppose bolshevism are indignant if you ask them what it is and why they oppose it. They characterize it, attack it, resent it. Great heat has been shown in discussing it, without throwing any light on the subject. Absurd lies have been told about bolshevism. Later these unnecessary and stupid lies have been exposed, with the result that suspicion has been bred, unrest fed. The effect upon the workers has been to increase their hate for their employers and destroy their already weakened faith in government.

Whether bolshevism is right or wrong, whether it is a good thing or a bad thing, it is at least a definite political plan, capable of being examined, measured, weighed and tested. It is few of the things it has been called. It is entitled to a hearing on its merits. It cannot be howled down in abuse.

Bolshevism Not Anarchy.

Those who lead the campaign against it frequently and confusingly define it as anarchy. If there is one thing that bolshevism is not, it is anarchy. Much controversy will be avoided, many differences of opinion dissolved if we come to a fair and open understanding of the bolshevik program. One of the great misfortunes is that we form opinions without information, rush to judgments without understanding, then stubbornly close our minds. Much of the discord and strife of life in big things, as well as in little matters, is due to this habit. Anarchy is not criminal lawlessness, notwithstanding the fact that this is the popular misconception of the term. Say "anarchist" and the average man or woman to whom you say it looks frightened, thinks of a bomb-thrower, a dynamiter, a firebrand. Such a man is not an anarchist; he is a terrorist, a criminal, a destructionist, a murderer. Let us call a spade a spade and be sure we know what a spade is, and we will understand each other better.

Anarchism is an old and respectable philosophy. The anarchist is an individualist. He is in favor of a free life for the individual. He is opposed to turning over the individual's power to the state. He argues that great power delegated to government limits the growth and freedom of the individual. He dreams of an ideal state in which human beings will be so perfect they need no law. His doctrine is an enlargement, an exaggeration of the idea that the government which governs least governs best. He isn't a lawbreaker. He is a law abolisher. He reasons that when murder leaves the human heart there will be no occasion for laws against killing; that the statute against murder is only printed words on the page of a law book, utterly and entirely without meaning, or existence, to the man who is incapable of killing his fellow man. He says that we should develop our artistic and moral sides and by evolution gradually repeal one law after another until all law disappears. It is pure idealism—it is a movement toward perfection. It is the millennium. It is poetry. Kipling wrote its counterpart when he wrote:

stitution when he wrote:

And only the Master shall praise us,
And only the Master shall blame,
And no one shall work for money,
And no one shall work for fame,
But each for the joy of working,
Each in his separate star,
Shall draw the Thing as he sees it,
For the God of Things as They Are.

Merely a Beautiful Dream.

Few people will contend that this theory is anything more than a beautiful dream. Probably the first and greatest of the anarchists was the great Greek philosopher Zeno, from Crete, who died 270 years B. C. It is disturbing to find dynamiters called anarchists, and in the same breath hear included some of the greatest idealists that have ever trod the earth. The very mention of the two types in the same class gives respectability to the totally ugly, depraved, ignorant, lawless criminal.

I went to a standard authority for a common-sense definition of bolshevism. I was in Prague on my way up toward the bolshevik front. I spent an afternoon with President Thomas G. Masaryk of the new Czechoslovakian republic. He is a Slav. He knows Russia. He was in Russia during the revolution and at the beginning of the counter-revolution which put bolshevism in the saddle. He has written of Russia and is accepted as an authority on the subject. I asked him, "What is bolshevism?" His answer was: "Bolshevism is consistent socialism."

Bolshevism is an old, untried theory of government. Its object is to secure a greater production and a more just distribution. Socialism says that men are without motive for efficient work today because they do not get a fair share of the things they produce; that the way to stimulate production is to adopt common ownership. Under such a plan, they say, every man would be working for himself, in the sense that all would be working for the state, and that as all are an equal part of the state their interests would be common and mutual. The socialist says that by working and doing as much as he could he would be helping to shorten the workday, because if all the people of the world were at work they could produce an abundance of everything necessary for the world's happiness and comfort, every one would have all he needed, no one would have more than another and it would be to the interests of each individual to work to shorten his own workday.

The program of socialism promises to destroy all private ownership. There will be no such thing as private property. No one will own land. The land, the factories, the railroads, the mines, everything, will be owned in common. The state will hold the title to everything, manage everything and distribute the product. This plan abolishes profits, rent and private capitalism.

Money and Capital.

To understand this doctrine it is necessary to clearly know the meaning of the word "capital." Many people confuse the word "capital" with the word "money." These words have totally different meanings. Money is the metal or paper used by a government to make easy the exchange of products. Without money the world would go back to the barter system, in which the man who had corn traded it for meat, clothes, and the others things he needed. Capital is the unconsumed product of labor. In other words, all of the food, cloth, clothing, machinery, etc., in the world is its capital, just as a man's capital is the food he has in the cupboard, the clothes he hasn't worn out, the money in the bank which represents a power to buy. It is the surplus. It is the reserve.

Plato, the great Greek philosopher, was one of the first of the socialists. In the republic of Plato we find a defense of state socialism. Even Plato to Lenin men have been urging communism as a cure for the ills of the world, as a remedy for wrong, as a means of penalizing exact justice.

Modern socialism dates from the "Communist Manifesto" published in 1848, by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels. Their outline of the socialist plan seized upon the thought of the world. Since that day it has been gathering the dissatisfied of the world and grouping them in a class, developing what they term a "class consciousness." Back of it has been an insistent, uninterrupted propaganda which has reached every corner of the globe. Billions of leaflets, pamphlets, tracts and books have been circulated. Millions of speeches have been made. Drawing rooms have been thrown open to it, highbrows have professed the faith, lowbrows have thundered the creed from soapboxes on the street corners. It has flourished best in Europe. It has furnished prime ministers. Its voice today in the parliaments of Europe is not a whisper—it is a shout. In the new governments which have come out of the war it is a militant, dominant factor. The bolshevism of Russia is pure socialism—literal communism. At this moment I am not writing of the methods of the bolsheviks. First, I want to make clear and simple their plan. Bolshevism is an effort to put into practice the doctrine preached by Plato, programmed by Marx.

When You Buy Poultry Feeds

Don't make it guess-work. You can eliminate the risk by our iron-clad guarantee. The money paid for Purina Chicken Chowder will be refunded if hens, when fed Purina Chicken Chowder with Purina Scratch Feed—the perfect balance for laying hens—as directed, do not lay more eggs than when fed with any other ration.

Most hens get too much grain, a large part of which goes into surplus yolks, which the hen absorbs. This makes the hen too fat and cuts down egg production. 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats and barley contain elements for 224 yolks, but only 154 whites. The feed of a laying hen should supply elements for both whites and yolks in equal quantity. Purina rations are rightly balanced. Based on Experiment Station tests, Purina Feeds contain the following:

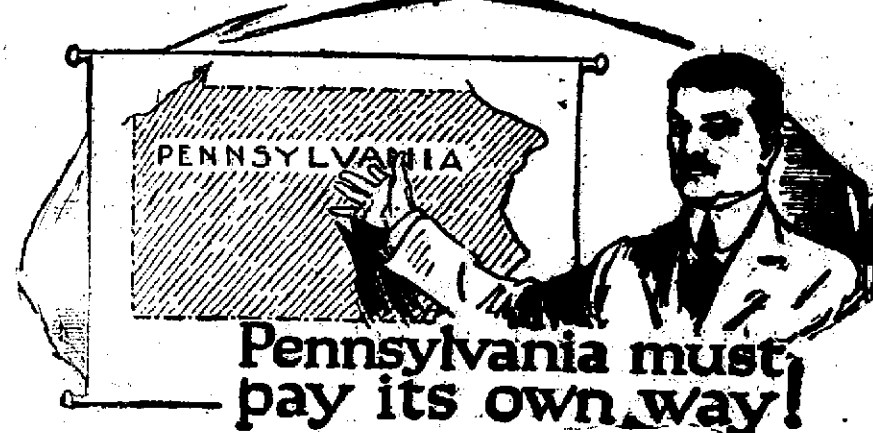

Elements per Ton
Purina Scratch Feed 247.40 142.11
Purina Chicken Chowder 222.22 222.22
Purina Feed 222.22 222.22

Note the larger number and almost equal proportion of whites and yolks in the Purina balanced ration. Purina feeds are scientifically mixed and insure results. In Checkboard Bag.

Many well managed business, if a branch is losing money, one of two things must be done—

Make adjustments so that the department will be self-supporting, or
Close up that end of the business.

Bell telephone operations in Pennsylvania are yielding no profits.

Certain units of the Bell System in other states have been granted increases in rates which make it possible for them to meet their expenses.

Today, Pennsylvania is not in that class and we in Pennsylvania cannot ask other states to shoulder our responsibilities. We must face our own problems.

In Pennsylvania right now, we are not making ends meet.

We have our own bills, our own payrolls, our own dividends to pay. We can't ask other states to pay them.

We must have increased rates in Pennsylvania or the service cannot be kept up.

Want More Money

Probably half the people we meet are wishing they had more money.

This alone shows the importance of saving money.

Does it not look reasonable then to develop a system for saving it?

It is the business of The Clearfield Trust Company to help make your savings account a success.

No Waste Motion Here

The packing business is noted for the elimination of waste in manufacturing.

Swift & Company is equally effective in saving waste in the distribution of products.

From ranch or farm to your meat dealer there is no loss of time, money, material, or motion.

Four hundred branch sales houses in large cities and towns, hundreds of regular refrigerator car routes reaching small towns, all directed by wire from a central point, bring meat products from our packing plants located in producing areas, to retailers in all parts of the country in the best possible condition, in the least possible time, at the least possible cost, and over the most direct route.

The total expense, for manufacture, freight, and selling direct to the retailer, is less than three cents per pound on all meat sold.

Our profit from all sources is only a fraction of a cent per pound.

Competition compels this close-cut saving. Large volume of business, a well-balanced, nation-wide organization, and expert attention to details by men who know, make it possible.

We are in your service—at least expense and profit.

Women Guard East Palace
Women police at Angkor Wat, for the most part old and unattractive, have long been in disrepute in Siam. As gatekeepers at the Women's palace in Bangkok they are assigned to a special location. One of their duties is to follow any visitor who visits the palace and come with him or her until their departure. They see that no mischief is done and that no one among the ladies of the court. The women police are armed in a distinctive uniform but are not armed.

Word to the Women.
It may not bear undue attention, but 210,162,913 needles were made in the United States last year. It could be pleasant mental recreation for a long evening to figure how many hours of labor, based on the proverb that a stitch in time saves nine, would have been saved the women of the nation if all these needles had been applied at the psychological moment.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring back color, youthfulness and lustre—Everybody is using it again.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantage of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe unproved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous—and you appear years younger.

OBITUARY

MRS. NANCY OWENS BROWN

Mrs. Nancy Owens Brown passed away at her home in Clearfield February 5th 1920, at the aged of 87 years. Death was due to pneumonia. She was the daughter of the late Robert and Elizabeth Hoover Owens and was born in Lawrence township, April 12, 1833.

On February 27, 1856 she was united in marriage to the late William R. Brown. To this union was born nine children of whom three are living to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted mother, viz: Miss Sue and Robert K., at home and Lewis K., of Cherrytree. She is also survived by two brothers, William and Milton Owens both of Lawrence township. She was a true Christian woman and highly respected by all who knew her. She was a life-long resident of this community and was laid to rest in the family plot in the Owens cemetery on Hillsdale, a part of the farm whereon she was born.

KNOX TOWNSHIP PIONEER DIES

John Erhard, an aged and well-known resident of Juniata, died at his home on West Tenth avenue on Sunday, March 7th at seven o'clock, after an illness of four weeks, his death being due to the infirmities of old age. He was born March 16th 1836, near New Millport, Clearfield county, and was the son of Christian and Jane (nee Patterson) Erhard. In his younger days he followed the occupation of farming in Clearfield county, but in later life he entered the lumber business, in Juniata, in partnership with his son Robert, under the firm name of John Erhard and Son. Mr. Erhard was engaged in the lumber business until four years ago, when he retired from active duties. He was a resident of Juniata for fourteen years. During his entire life time he was a member of the Lutheran church at New Millport.

On October 28th, 1862, he was married to Elizabeth Patterson, with whom he lived for fifty-eight years.

To this union there was born five children, three of whom died in infancy. Surviving are his son and daughter, Robert and Mrs. William Fink, both of Juniata, and nine grandchildren; two brothers and a sister, Alfred of Altoona, Pa.; Phillip, of Windber, Pa. and Mrs. G. W. Rex, of Palmyra, N. J.

After services at Juniata Wednesday evening, the body will be shipped to New Millport Thursday morning, for further services and burial. (Other Clearfield papers please copy)

DON'T NEGLECT THE LITTLE ONES

A snuffling, sneezing, coughing child certainly is a reflection upon the parents. To permit a child to suffer from a cold is more than negligence; it is cruel. A cold that hangs on weakens the system and can easily turn into something serious. Mrs. J. S. Pitson, 376 E. 158 St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I can't speak too highly of Foley's Honey and Tar. When my little girl has a cold I give her Foley's Honey and Tar and that stops her coughing in a little while." Children like it. It contains no opiates. Sold everywhere.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

Frank H. Thompson, of Philadelphia, was a guest of his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thompson, several days this week.

Clyde Gates, foreman of the Curwensville Plumbing shop, has been confined to his home, corner of Walnut and George streets, for a week by an attack of grippe and flu.

Mrs. Lloyd Addleman has been confined to her home on George street by illness.

The ladies waiting room at the P. R. R. station is now kept open until the late night train leaves for Grampian. The room is in charge of Chief Clark who will see that ladies who are compelled to await the arrival of the train are not disturbed by "night owls." This move is a great accommodation for people along the line between this place and Grampian, who come here on the down train to shop and transact business during the evening hours.

Only two arrests were made by the police in this town during the month of February for violation of borough ordinances.

Fred Young, who has been seriously ill for several weeks from pneumonia is reported as not getting along toward recovery as fast as his many friends would wish.

L. Raymond Wingert who has been a clerk in the postoffice for almost three years, under Postmaster Kittleberger's administration has resigned his position the same to take effect on April 1st. He has made a most efficient and obliging clerk and it will be some time before his place can be so ably filled. He expects to enter one of Curwensville's stores as a clerk as soon as he is released from his post office duties.

The examinations for a clerkship in the Curwensville post office will be held next Saturday. There are seven applications who desire to take the examination.

Mrs. Fred Hopkins who came here to take care of her sister Mrs. Annie Cole, will return to her home in Pittsburgh within the next few days.

The family of George Patterson consisting of an invalid wife and two children, are down with the influenza. Mr. Patterson is ill himself but just forces himself to be on his feet that he might care for the others.

Sure Death to Corns

"Gets-It" Makes 'Em Lose Their Grip and Lift Off Painlessly.

The first thing "Gets-It" does when it lands on a corn or callus is to snuff out the pain. Then it shrivels the corn or callus and loosens it.

Soon, it is almost ready to fall off. You help it just a little by lifting it off 'twixt thumb and finger. You don't even feel it, because there is no hurt left in it. Millions have proved it the cleanest, surest, safest and most pleasant method.

"Gets-It" is the never failing, guaranteed money-back corn remover. Costs but a trifle at any drug store. Sold by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. Sold in Clearfield and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Stewart Drug Company and Hyman.

PHILADELPHIA HAS AN ODOR SQUAD

PHILADELPHIA, March 9 (United Press).—The City of Brotherly Love has an "odor squad." A force of "sniff detectives"—men with extraordinarily keen olfactory nerves—has been established to ferret out the sources of offensive smells in various sections of the city.

George H. Shaw, chief of the division of housing and sanitation, directs the work. The sanitary detectives work along the same line as a bloodhound. They go to the vicinity from which bad odors are reported, sniff the air until they get a bad whiff, and then trace it to its lair. The health authorities are then notified.

INTERCHURCH WORLD
MOVEMENT COUNTY
UNITS FORMED

Organization of the Interchurch World Movement is nearing completion in every county in Western Pennsylvania and Dr. Morris E. Swartz of Harrisburg, state secretary of the movement has announced a tentative schedule of the conferences and towns in which they will be held.

All protestant evangelical ministers of each county will be invited to these meetings at which the entire program of the great forward movement of churches allied in the Interchurch World Movement will be gone into detail and plans will be made for carrying out the program by organizations in the county and in the individual congregations.

Some idea of the immensity of the work to be done may be gained from the fact that there will hardly be less than 1000 workers in the smallest county in the state and that in many of the larger counties the organized church workers will number more than 10,000. These workers will be organized by denominations by city, township, borough and districts.

The county conferences are to be held after Easter in compliance with the suggestion made at the pastors' state conference recently held in Harrisburg, so that there will be no interference with the great gathering on Easter Sunday.

Because of the difficulty of routing the nineteen teams of speakers who will conduct the 67 county conferences in Pennsylvania, the schedule as announced will not permit of much flexibility. The conditions of travel into some of the county seats make it necessary to start at one place if the schedule is to be maintained.

The schedule as completed so far, has planned for conference: in Waynesburg, Green county, April 6; Washington, Washington county, April 7; Greensburg, Westmoreland county, April 8; Uniontown, Fayette county, April 9; Butler, Butler county, April 6; Allegheny county, town not yet named, April 7; New Brighton, Beaver county, April 8; New Castle, Lawrence county, April 9; Franklin, Venango county, April 6; Meadville, Crawford county, April 7; Sharon, Mercer county, April 8; Erie, Erie county, April 9; Warren, Warren county, April 6; Tionesta, Forest county, April 7; Kittanning, Armstrong county, April 8; Clarion, Clarion county, April 9; Indiana, Indiana county, April 6; Punxsutawney, Jefferson county, April 7; Ridgway, Elk county, April 8; Bradford, McKean county, April 9; Johnstown, Cambria county, April 6; Altoona, Blair county, April 7; Clearfield county, April 8; Bellefonte, Centre county, April 9; Lock Haven, Clinton county, April 9; Huntingdon, Huntingdon county, April 6; Bedford county, April 7; Somerset, Somerset county, April 8.

ONE EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your back hurts or bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because it is so much a part of our food is so much filled with uric acid. The kidneys strive to filter out the uric acid from the blood. When they fail to do so, the uric acid builds up in the blood, and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy spells, upset stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jai Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is

STATE COLLEGE IS PLANNING FOR BIG HOMECOMING

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 9.—"Alumni Home-coming Day" will be a new annual feature that will be added to the Penn State Schedule of events for the first time next fall. Saturday, October 9th, has been chosen by E. N. Sullivan, general alumni secretary, for this event. As a special attraction for that day there will be a football game with Dartmouth, and with special arrangements made for the entertainment of alumni and former students of the college, it is expected that hundreds of them will be here at that time.

The usual class reunions will be held at Commencement time in June. There has recently been a demand for a special get-together occasion in the fall of the year when college alumni feel that they are in better position to drop the cares of business for a few days than at any other time. With this end in view the "Alumni Home-coming" plan has been adopted at Penn State, and at the time selected, every effort will be put forth by the college to entertain the "old men" who will return to the campus.

IN MEMORIAM

Alice Joannice Bell, September 23, 1919, February 15, 1920.

A little bud from Heaven sent To bloom on earth, in hearts at home, The Gardener's choice, but only lent The seedling to the earthen loam.

A little bud with petals sweet, Unfolding in our arms so dear, All wrapped so lovingly complete By Angel hands around so near.

To bloom on earth was God's intent, To bloom in Heaven is God's will, The vessel broken which He sent, The fragrance gone, the vessel still.

We saw thy Angel smiling face, We held thee close with trembling breath, That thou wert given by His grace, And taken from us by a Death,

The sting of which ne'er marred its soul, But freed the spirit from the sod, And left to us the broken bowl, And took the spirit home to God.

We pray to thee, Oh Gardener true, To show the way our Alice fled, The Golden Gate, the ethereal Blue, And we'll to Thee and Alice wed.

MERCANTILE TAX IS UNDER FIRE

HAZELTON, March 9. (United Press).—A state-wide organization for putting on record the attitudes of every candidate for the state legislature relative to the proposed repeal of the mercantile appraisalment act, is being formed along lines suggested by James H. Powers of this city, president of the Merchant's bureau. Powers has as the basis of his plan the suggestion that while home merchants who pay taxes in their respective homes and must also stand for the state levy, mail order houses can come in and obtain business without paying a tax. A million dollars in revenue from this source is received by the state each year, it was said.

NEW COMPENSATION DISTRICTS FORMED

Under the reorganization plans of the state workmen's compensation bureau, announcement of which was made yesterday from Harrisburg a change materially affecting the Altoona district of the bureau will result, three counties at the present handled by Referee Jacob G. Snyder to be eliminated from the Altoona or No. 6 district.

The state department announces the establishment of two new districts, No. 9 district to include Luzerne, Columbia, outpour and Northumberland county, Asa E. Lewis, former superintendent of the county schools at Northumberland, to be the referee.

A second district, known as No. 10, and including Jefferson, Clearfield, Indiana, Armstrong and Clarion county has been formed with Gus M. Gleason as the referee. Offices will be opened in Wilkes-Barre and DuBois.

The changes relieve the Altoona district of Northumberland, Indiana and Clearfield counties, and confine the local bureau to cases in Blair, Bedford, Cambria, Somerset and Huntingdon counties.

Just when the new offices will be opened is problematical, Referee Snyder, having as yet received no official notification of the new office sites and he has not yet been informed as to turning over the cases pertaining to the two new groups.

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

Soak one's feet and feel one's best food into the stomach. Girls and women with yellow skin, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad teeth, nasty breath, others who are bothered with constipation, should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanse, purify and freshen the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do. Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just try this for a week and notice results.

"All Or None" Wilson Stand On Treaty

Action Of President Sure To Make Pact An Issue In The Elections This Year

SENATE CONTINUES ITS DEBATE

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9.—The League as it stands or no league at all, is the way President Wilson sees it, in the opinion of Democratic and Republican senators today in discussing Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Discussion of President Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock refusing a treaty compromise broke out in the Senate today soon after it met. Lodge, the Republican leader, opened debate. At the same time the efforts to agree on the compromise of Article Ten reservation continued. A new reservation was agreed upon by Republican leaders, including Lodge and was accepted by some Democrats. Whether a sufficient number of Democrats will agree to it is not yet apparent. It will be offered by the Republicans however whether they are assured of the support of the Democratic vote or not.

Text of Wilson's Letter
The text of the President's letter to Senator Hitchcock follows:

The White House,
Washington, 8 March, 1920

"My dear Senator Hitchcock—I understand that one or two of your colleagues do me the honor of desiring to know what my views are with reference to Article X of the League of Nations and the effect upon the league of the adoption of certain proposed reservations to that article. I welcome the opportunity to throw any light I can upon a subject which has become so singularly beset by misapprehensions and misinterpretations of every kind.

"There is no escaping the moral obligations which are expressed in positive terms in this article of the covenant. We won a moral victory over Germany far greater even than the military victory won on the field of battle, because the opinion of the whole world swung to our support and the support of the nations associated with us in the great struggle. It did so because of our common profession and promise that we meant to establish an organization of peace which should make it certain that the combined power of free nations would check every invasion of right and serve to make peace and justice the more secure by affording a definite tribunal of opinion to which all must submit and by which every international readjustment that cannot be amicably agreed upon by the peoples directly concerned shall be sanctioned.

"This promise and assurance were written into the preliminaries of the armistice and into the preliminaries of the peace itself, and constitute one of the most sacred obligations ever assumed by any nation or body of nations. It is unthinkable that America should set the example of ignoring such a solemn moral engagement.

"Pledges to Soldiers"

"For myself I feel I could not look the soldiers of our gallant armies in the face again if I did not do everything in my power to remove every obstacle that lies in the way of the adoption of this particular article of the covenant because we made these pledges to them as well as to the rest of the world and it was to this cause they deemed themselves devoted in a spirit of crusaders. I should be forever unfaithful to them if I did not do my utmost to fulfill the high purpose for which they fought.

"I think my dear senator we can dismiss from our minds the idea that it is necessary to stipulate in connection with Article X the constitutional methods we should use in fulfilling our obligations under it. We gain nothing by such stipulation and secure nothing which is not already secured. It was understood as a matter of course at the conference in Paris that whatever obligations any government assumed or whatever duties it undertook under the treaty would of course, have to be fulfilled by its usual and established constitutional methods of action. Once or twice in meetings of the conference, when the treaty was under consideration 'reservations' were made to that effect by the representatives of individual powers and those 'reservations' were invariably received in the way in which men who have met for business and not for talk always receive acts of scrupulous supererogation listened to with indifferent silence, as such men listen to what is a matter of course and was not necessary to say.

"There can be no objection to explaining again what our constitutional method is and that our Congress alone can declare war or determine the causes or occasions for war, and that it alone can authorize the use of the armed forces of the United States on land or on sea. But to make such a declaration would certainly be a work of supererogation.

Called Virtual Nullification

"I am sorry to say that the reservations that have come under my notice are almost without exception not interpretations of the articles to which it is proposed to attach them, but in effect virtual nullification of those articles.

"Any reservation which seeks to deprive the League of Nations of the force of Article X cuts at the very heart and life of the covenant itself. Any League of Nations which does not guarantee as a matter of incontestable right the political independence and integrity of each of its members might be hardly more than a futile scrap of paper as ineffective in operation as the agreement between Belgium and Germany which the Germans violated in 1914. Article X as written into the treaty of Versailles represents the renunciation by Great Britain and Japan, which before the war had begun to find so many interests in common in the Pacific; by France, by Italy, by all the great fighting powers of the world of the old pretensions of political conquest and territorial aggrandizement. It is a new doctrine in the world's affairs, and must be recognized or there is no secure basis for the peace which the whole world so longingly desires and so desperately needs.

"If Article X is not adopted and acted upon the governments which reject it will, I think, be guilty of bad faith to their people whom they induced to make the indefinite sacrifices of the war by the pledge that they would be fighting to redeem the world from the old order of force and aggression. They will be acting also in bad faith to the opinion of the world at large to which they appealed for support in a concerted stand against the aggressions and pretensions of Germany.

"If we were to reject Article X or so to weaken it as to take its full force out of it, it would mark us as desiring to return to the old world of jealous rivalry and misunderstanding, from which our gallant soldiers have rescued us, and would leave us without any vision or new conception of justice and peace. We will have learned no lesson from the war, but gained only the regret that it had involved us in its maelstrom of suffering. If America has awakened as the rest of the world has to the vision of a new day in which the mistakes of the past are to be corrected, it will welcome the opportunity to share the responsibilities of Article X.

"Wrong Ambitions Renounced"

"It must not be forgotten, Senator, that this article constitutes a renunciation of wrong ambition on the part of powerful nations with whom we were associated in the war. It is by no means certain that without this article any such renunciation will take place. Militaristic ambitions and imperialistic policies are by no means dead even in the councils of the nations whom we most trust and with whom we most desire to be associated in the tasks of peace. Throughout the sessions of the conference in Paris it was evident that a militaristic party under the most influential leadership was seeking to gain ascendancy in the councils of France. They were defeated then, but are in control now. The chief arguments advanced in Paris in support of the Italian claims on the Adriatic were strategic arguments, which had at their back the thought of naval supremacy in that sea. For my own part I am as intolerant of imperialistic designs on the part of other nations as I was of such designs on the part of Germany.

"The choice is between two ideals: One on the one hand, the ideal of democracy, which presents the rights of free peoples everywhere to govern themselves; and on the other hand the ideal of imperialism which seeks to dominate by force and unjust power; an ideal which is by no means dead and which is earnestly held in many quarters still. Every imperialistic influence in Europe was hostile to the embodiment of Article X in the covenant of the League of Nations, and its defeat now would mark the complete consummation of their efforts to nullify the treaty. I hold the doctrine of Article X to be the essence of Americanism. We cannot repudiate it or weaken it without at the same time repudiating our own principles.

"The imperialist wants no league of nations, but if in response to the universal cry of the masses everywhere there is to be one he is interested to secure one suited to his own purposes one that will permit him to continue the historic game of pawns and peoples—the juggling of provinces the old balances of power and the inevitable wars attendant upon these things.

Fight Centered on Article X

"The reservation proposed would perpetuate the old order. Does any one really want to see the old game played again? Can any one really venture to take part in reviving the old order? The enemies of a league of nations have by very true instinct captured this point against Article X, for it is undoubtedly the foundation of the whole structure. It is the bulwark, and the only bulwark of the rising democracy of the world against the forces of imperialism and reaction.

"Either we should enter the league fearlessly, accepting the responsibility and not fearing the role of leadership which we now enjoy, contributing our efforts toward establishing a just and permanent peace, or we should retire as gracefully as possible from the great concert of powers by which the world was saved. For my own part, I am not willing to trust to the counsel of diplomats the working out of any salvation of the world from the things which it has suffered.

"I believe that when the full significance of this great question has been generally apprehended, obstacles will seem insignificant before opportunity, a great and glorious opportunity, to contribute your overwhelming moral and material force to the establishment of an international regime in which our own ideals of justice and right may be made to prevail and the nations of the world would be allowed a peaceful development under conditions of order and safety hitherto impossible.

"I need not say, senator, that I have given a great deal of thought to the whole matter of reservations proposed in connection with the ratification of the treaty, and particularly that portion of the treaty which contains the covenant of the League of Nations, and I have been struck by the fact that practically every so-called reservation was in effect a rather sweeping nullification of the terms of the treaty itself. I hear of reservationists and mild reservationists but I cannot understand the difference between a nullifier and a mild nullifier. Our responsibility as a nation in this turning point of history is an overwhelming one, and if I had the opportunity I would beg every one concerned to consider the matter in the lights of what it is possible to accomplish for humanity rather than in the light of special national interests.

"If I have been truly informed concerning the desire of some of your colleagues to know my views in this matter, I would be very glad if you should show this letter to them.

"Cordially and sincerely yours

THIS WIDE, WIDE WORLD IS SMALL PLACE AFTER ALL

Erstwhile Clearfielder Turns Up At The Necessary Moment At Other Side Of The Earth

"THE OLD MAN FAVORED ME"

This is a little old world after all, and the fellow who told us during the free silver campaign of 1896 that "on he instant a man embarked in the banking business the milk of human kindness straightway began to dry up in his breast," was drawing the long bow a little too strong. At least one would be led to believe the truth of both of the above statements after reading the tale we will attempt to pass along to you herewith. Some hoary-headed old philosopher or sage of the long ago observed that "the evil men do lives after them, while he good is interred with their bones." We find from our observations that this is not always the case, also that even the banker—the fellow who comes in for the severest criticism from the crack-brained agitator who refrains from all effort to feed the world by his own labors, while endeavoring to save it with his mouth—has his good traits along with newspaper reporters and the other 'salt of the earth,' and will on occasion go out of his road to do a favor that sticks in the other fellow's crop or memory 'til time and opportunity, as they sometimes have a way of doing, allows him to get even by returning that favor on the principle of the return of the broad east upon the waters of the stream of life.

Our erstwhile Clearfield banker friend, E. E. Lindemuth, was a Clearfield visitor over Sunday and, while enjoying a chat over old times and old friends, he inadvertently gave us the text for our philosophization and in telling the story as we remember it you will get the application.

Upon inquiry concerning his eldest son Lloyd, Mr. Lindemuth informed us that the young man—a Clearfield high school graduate who has made every good in his battle with the world—was now engaged in assisting in the erection of a steel mill in far-off India, his engineering concern having sent him to the other side of the world on a three year mission.

He left the United States in November of 1918. He arranged for his wife to follow him and Mrs. Lindemuth started on her long journey early in 1919. She was traveling on Cook's tour ticket; when she reached Hong Kong, China, was chagrined to find that the passenger steamer she was scheduled to take, had departed for Calcutta and there would be no possible chance of her getting another boat for at least one month.

Thirty days alone in a foreign town on the other side of the world at a $9.00 per day hotel, was a situation to appall the stoutest heart and it is needless to add that the young woman was greatly worried over her predicament. After exhausting every effort possible without avail, Mrs. Lindemuth was about to give up in despair, when a fellow-American guest at the hotel, noting his countrywoman's distress, made bold to inquire the cause and to offer his assistance.

The story of the unfortunate departure of the boat and the month's wait for another was soon told, the distressed traveler ending her recital by giving her name and explaining the reason for her long journey alone from the States.

When the friend in need said "Do you happen to know E. E. Lindemuth of Clearfield and Bradford," Mrs. Lindemuth promptly replied, "Why, he's my father-in-law."

The gentleman, Charles W. Mills, who was superintendent of the powder mill at the creek when it was destroyed by the fire the last time, and was afterwards secretary of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Operators' Association, then said, "Well, I not only know the old man well, but I owe him a favor or two and will endeavor to repay in part at least by seeing 'hat we can do to help you out of your difficulty."

Mr. Mills hustled right down to the shipping offices and by that manner of means known only to energetic, hustling American business men, soon had arrangements made for the stranded traveler to embark from Hong Kong most comfortably quartered on a freighter, and the journey

"JONAH" WISE AND THE CATFISH

Jack Wise, of the Riverside Hotel, is the hero of the first fish story for the season of 1920. The funny part of Jack's story, too, is that it is all true. When the ice went out of the river on Saturday last, water to a depth of three feet was backed into the Riverside cellar, by means of the sewer emptying into the dam in front of the New York Central station. Yesterday morning the water had subsided to such an extent that Jack donned his rubber boots and went downstairs for the purpose of starting a little fire in the boiler. The pit in front of the boiler contained about fifteen inches of water and when Jack went sloshing about in the water to his knees, something dashed against one of his legs, but he paid no attention to it and when it hit him on the other side he gave it only passing notice. Finally whatever it was dashed between his legs and then Jack, with visions of a sea serpent wrapping about his spindly shanks, let out a yell which startled the natives. Plunging his hands down into the water to wrench the supposed "sea serpent" from around his running gear, he grasped something and heaving as he yelled and fell back into the water, he threw a fifteen-inch catfish across the cellar onto the coal pile.

Help arrived by this time, alarmed by the commotion and Jack and the catfish were soon rescued alive.

The big fish is on display at the Riverside and many travelers stop and look it over and listen to Jack's tearful tale. He said he thought at first it was something that escaped from an empty "bar liquor" barrel floating about in the cellar, but being on a cold water diet long enough to see things in their true light he quickly recovered, but it was some sight.

LET US SAVE OUR TEARS FOR AWHILE

The destruction of the Deer Creek and Rollingstone bridges will no doubt entail considerable expense to the county of Clearfield, but there doesn't appear to be a very good or much reason for anybody getting hysterical or getting up on his hind legs with the death rattle howl in his throat. It is thought the county may be able to pull through with careful nursing.

For general information it might not be out of place to remark that these two bridges were each approximately 340 feet long. They were of two span trussed steel construction with 18-foot driveways.

The Deer Creek bridge was built in 1889 by Graham and Girard townships and was taken over as a county bridge in 1916 under an order of the Clearfield county courts. Because the two townships named had the bridge constructed no record of its first cost is available on the county records.

The Rollingstone bridge was built by the county in 1891 and the price paid for the bridge proper without the pier and abutments being included was $5,435. The stone work would add possibly $1500 or $2000 to that total.

BANDITS RAID MISSOURI BANK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9.—Three bank attaches were shot, one fatally, when four unmasked bandits attempted to hold up the South Side bank here today.

Getting Rid of House Pests. Cockroaches or the "crotch bug" may be held in check by setting out two saucers, one containing a mixture of flour and plaster paris and the other filled with water. The mixture should be four parts plaster of paris and one part of flour. Badly infested apartments may be thoroughly ridged of this pest by fumigating with hydrocyanic acid gas.

was completed in due time without further disquieting incident.

Now, if you have followed us through this tale, which will surprise Mr. Lindemuth when he reads it, don't you agree with us that this old world is really a small place. Also, isn't it a remarkable coincidence that Mr. Mills should turn up at the necessary moment away on the other side of the world, to return a favor granted years before in the usual humdrum business life of a little Pennsylvania town some sixteen thousand miles distant? "We'll say she do."

SEVEN MILE ICE JAM MENACES CLEARFIELD: SHOULD BE BROKEN UP AT ONCE

Some alarm is being felt in Clearfield over an ice jam in the river which extends practically and almost solidly from Shawville bridge up to a point in the river opposite the New York Central round house below the tannery. The intervening distance by the river is more than seven miles, so some idea of the body of ice impounded by the bridge piers and falling water may be secured.

The jam has already succeeded in damming or backing the water up beyond the dam at the New York Central station and some apprehension is being felt as to just what will be the result when the next high water arrives.

It is said the upper ice is jammed at Lumber City and Curry Run and if these jams break loose and come down as is usually the case, before the Shawville jam can leave Clearfield and the New York Central yards will be in for a huge headwater flood. There is some talk of an attempt being made to dynamite the ice at several points between Clearfield and Shawville in the hope of breaking and shattering it to such an extent that the first little rise will melt and float it out, and some signs of the kind should undoubtedly be taken. It would prove to be a money matter, in any event.

ADMIRAL SIMS SCORES DANIELS IN INQUIRY BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The war was prolonged four months by failure of the Navy Department to act promptly on recommendations of the Allied naval authorities and himself, Rear Admiral Simms declared today before the Senate Naval Affairs sub-committee, testifying in its probe of the naval war work.

"In the war," he said, "the navy took a 'hand to mouth' policy." Sims, who was the first witness called, criticized the American Naval College and Secretary Daniels and declared that:

The Navy failed to co-operate fully with the Allies, resulting in needless sacrifices.

That Sims' efforts at team work were "delayed or nullified."

That Daniels committed an outrage

in making public one of Sims' letters regarding Admiral Wilson and various other naval officers and then sent it by radio.

That "a campaign of deliberate propaganda" had been reported to Sims by Daniels to belittle Sims.

The big committee hearing room was crowded with naval officers and spectators.

In his statement, Sims held emphasis on the fact that one of his tasks in London was to digest the Allied naval experience of the war and make recommendations based on them.

Sims was applauded as he took his seat at the Senate table. He was flanked by half a dozen high naval officers and an aid sat at his left with a high pile of documents for the Admiral's use.

WOMEN OF PENNSYLVANIA ANXIOUS TO LEARN WHEN VOTE WILL COME

HARRISBURG, March 9. (United Press.)—Women of Pennsylvania this week were looking to Attorney-General William I. Schaffer to decide just what their status will be when the required number of states formally ratify the Federal Amendment. There are but three of the required number of states yet to ratify.

The Attorney-General's department has been in a turmoil over the question for several weeks. Deputies have been in conference at various times trying to decide how, should the Attorney-General allow the women a vote at the primaries and general election this year, the required additional machinery could be put into motion.

Reported obstacles in the way of ratification of the federal amendment

have resulted in women's organizations being much perturbed. These reports, it was said by politicians at the Capitol today, are based on the suggestion that while in states where the primary is held in April the women, if allowed to vote, would insist that they cast their ballots at the primary and thereby cause a serious difficulty before the election officials.

The question in the whole which is taking the limelight of Capitol Hill, is whether ratification of the federal amendment would prohibit the women from voting or whether they automatically become voters through the abolishment of the sex distinction as was done by the Pennsylvania Commission on Constitutional Revision and Amendment.

COURT NOTES

The "divorce bug" again seems to be epidemic in Clearfield county, the records of the Prothonotary's office showing no less than six divorce applications entered within the past two days.

On Monday Chase & Chase began two suits as follows:

Elizabeth Mascho wants to be relieved of the legal injunction to "love, honor and obey" her husband Leo Mascho, because the actions of the husband and his treatment of her makes it impossible so to do. They were married October 12, 1910 and the husband deserted December 23, 1918.

James W. Oliver reverses the usual order of things and seeks a divorce from Millie Oliver because of her cruel and barbarous treatment of the complainant forcing him to leave her on February 15, 1920, after having married her June 27, 1916.

James A. Gleason, Esq., began suit on behalf of Ruby E. Matthews, who asks a divorce from Ernest L. Matthews. She says they were married July 25, 1912, but the husband's cruel and barbarous treatment forced her to withdraw from his home February 23, 1920. The statement filed also alleges that Matthews was very prodigal in the bestowal of his affections and names Marie Brown as co-respondent in the case.

MAINTENANCE MEN AND SHOPWORKERS WILL NOT STRIKE

CHICAGO, March 9.—A threatened railway strike was averted here today when maintenance and shop workers voted to remain with the other railroad workers organizations. Their wage demands will go before the President's commission with those of the other bodies. The vote by which the grand lodge decided the course of the 400,000 members was not announced.

HERE'S A HERO, LADIES

CHICAGO, March 9.—State Senator William Block, of West Virginia, left here by special train at noon today, to save women suffrage in his state from a dead lock. Block took the train instead of an airplane, as his wife objected to the danger of an aeroplane trip. He said he would reach Charleston in ample time to vote ratifying the suffrage amendment.

IN A GILBERTIAN SENSE

By S. E. KISER

"Twas on the porch where the White House looms
That I saw an elderly man,
And I heard him say in a peevish way:
"They think I can't but I can!"

"There are wilful men who have tried their worst
To jumble the plans I've made;
But I'll show them yet that I never let
My one-track mind be swayed.

"The Constitution's no bar to me;
I've put it upon the shelf;
I'm a laddy-buck and a muck-a-muck,
And I'm running things all myself.

"I've given Lansing and Colonel House
And others the word to go
And before I'll through I'll show Congress, too,
That whatever I say is so."

He heaved a sigh that was long and deep,
And his look became hard and cold,
And he blinked a blink and appeared to think
It was doing him good to scold.

"I've a rod in pickle for Lodge," he said,
"And I never will yield a jot;
I'm ruling still with an iron will,
In spite of the scurvy lot.

"I'm the greatest man that ever was born;
I'm a prophet and potentate;
I'm the Cabinet, too, and the whole blamed crew
In charge of the Ship of State.

"I know all things; it is I alone
Who can see what is right or wrong;
I've nothing to learn, and I'm glad to spurn
The advice that is passed along.

"For I am the crew and the captain bold;
I can't do a foolish act,
And I'll eat my hand if I understand
Why any one doubts the fact!"

OST OF HOME GARDENING ONLY A LITTLE BIT HIGHER

But the Back Yard Food Producer Gains Much More in the Value of His Vegetables

Food prices are high, but food grown in home gardens costs comparatively little more than before prices began to ascend. This additional reason for home gardening in 1920 is put forward by specialists of the United States department of agriculture. They quote a letter from a New York business man. He wrote:

"Food costs today are practically double those of 1914, but the cost to plant and care for a home garden has not increased to any considerable extent. The clerk salesman or professional man who grows his own vegetables and small fruits reduces the family food bill. More important still, he increases the total food supply of the country. He enters the producing class. To a very appreciable extent the home gardener can solve the high cost of living."

How can the man who never gardened learn how to garden? One good way is to write to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., or to his State College of agriculture for a bulletin that describes every step in making a back yard or vacant lot help feed his family.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

SOME LIGHT ON BOLSHEVISM

Movement Not Anarchistic, as So Many Seem to Think—Probably Is Best Described as "Consistent Socialism."

Article XIII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

If I were asked to name the principal cause for the growing unrest in answer would be bolshevism. The almost universal attitude of big business toward Russian bolshevism—an attitude adopted by most of the governments of Europe—has been, and is, kill it; don't waste time examining it; it isn't worth trying to understand; no good can come out of it; it must be fought; it isn't entitled to a trial. Reams of paper have been used to assail it. Captains of industry and government officials have vied with each other in making assault on it. Many of those who oppose bolshevism are indignant if you ask them what it is and why they oppose it. They characterize it, attack it, resent it. Great heat has been shown in discussing it, without throwing any light on the subject. Absurd lies have been told about bolshevism. Later these unnecessary and stupid lies have been exposed, with the result that suspicion has been bred, unrest fed. The effect upon the workers has been to increase their hate for their employers and destroy their already weakened faith in government.

Whether bolshevism is right or wrong, whether it is a good thing or a bad thing, it is at least a definite political plan, capable of being examined, measured, weighed and tested. It is few of the things it has been called. It is entitled to a hearing on its merits. It cannot be howled down in abuse.

Bolshevism Not Anarchy.

Those who lead the campaign against it frequently and confusingly define it as anarchy. If there is one thing that bolshevism is not, it is anarchy. Much controversy will be avoided, many differences of opinion dissolved if we come to a fair and open understanding of the bolshevik program. One of the great misfortunes is that we form opinions without information, rush to judgments without understanding, then stubbornly close our minds. Much of the discord and strife of life in big things, as well as in little matters, is due to this habit. Anarchy is not criminal lawlessness, notwithstanding the fact that this is the popular misconception of the term. Say "anarchist" and the average man or woman to whom you say it looks frightened, thinks of a bomb-thrower, a dynamiter, a firebrand. Such a man is not an anarchist; he is a terrorist, a criminal, a destructionist, a murderer. Let us call a spade a spade and be sure we know what a spade is, and we will understand each other better.

Anarchism is an old and respectable philosophy. The anarchist is an individualist. He is in favor of a free life for the individual. He is opposed to turning over the individual's power to the state. He argues that great power delegated to government limits the growth and freedom of the individual. He dreams of an ideal state in which human beings will be so perfect they need no law. His doctrine is an enlargement, an exaggeration of the idea that the government which governs least governs best. He isn't a lawbreaker. He is a law abolisher. He reasons that when murder leaves the human heart there will be no occasion for laws against killing; that the statute against murder is only printed words on the page of a law book, utterly and entirely without meaning, or existence, to the man who is incapable of killing his fellow man. He says that we should develop our artistic and moral sides and by evolution gradually repeal one law after another until all law disappears. It is pure idealism—it is a movement toward perfection. It is the millennium. It is poetry. Kipling wrote its confession.

stitution when he wrote:

And only the Master shall praise us,
And only the Master shall blame,
And no one shall work for money,
And no one shall work for fame,
But each for the joy of working,
Each in his separate star,
Shall draw the Thing as he sees it,
For the God of Things as They Are.

Merely a Beautiful Dream.

Few people will contend that this theory is anything more than a beautiful dream. Probably the first and greatest of the anarchists was the great Greek philosopher Zeno, from Crete, who died 270 years B. C. It is disturbing to find dynamiters called anarchists, and in the same breath hear included some of the greatest idealists that have ever trod the earth. The very mention of the two types in the same class gives respectability to the totally ugly, depraved, ignorant, lawless criminal.

I went to a standard authority for a common-sense definition of bolshevism. I was in Prague on my way up toward the bolshevik front. I spent an afternoon with President Thomas G. Masaryk of the new Czechoslovakian republic. He is a Slav. He knows Russia. He was in Russia during the revolution and at the beginning of the counter-revolution which put bolshevism in the saddle. He has written of Russia and is accepted as an authority on the subject. I asked him, "What is bolshevism?" His answer was: "Bolshevism is consistent socialism."

Bolshevism is an old, untried theory of government. Its object is to secure a greater production and a more just distribution. Socialism says that men are without motive for efficient work today because they do not get a fair share of the things they produce; that the way to stimulate production is to adopt common ownership. Under such a plan, they say, every man would be working for himself, in the sense that all would be working for the state, and that as all are an equal part of the state their interests would be common and mutual. The socialist says that by working and doing as much as he could he would be helping to shorten the workday, because if all the people of the world were at work they could produce an abundance of everything necessary for the world's happiness and comfort, every one would have all he needed, no one would have more than another and it would be to the interests of each individual to work to shorten his own workday.

The program of socialism promises to destroy all private ownership. There will be no such thing as private property. No one will own land. The land, the factories, the railroads, the mines, everything, will be owned in common. The state will hold the title to everything, manage everything and distribute the product. This plan abolishes profits, rent and private capitalism.

Money and Capital.

To understand this doctrine it is necessary to clearly know the meaning of the word "capital." Many people confuse the word "capital" with the word "money." These words have totally different meanings. Money is the metal or paper used by a government to make easy the exchange of products. Without money the world would go back to the barter system, in which the man who had corn traded it for meat, clothes, and the others things he needed. Capital is the unconsumed product of labor. In other words, all of the food, cloth, clothing, machinery, etc., in the world is its capital, just as a man's capital is the food he has in the cupboard, the clothes he hasn't worn out, the money in the bank which represents a power to buy. It is the surplus. It is the reserve.

Plato, the great Greek philosopher, was one of the first of the socialists. In the republic of Plato we find a defense of state socialism. Even Plato to Lenin men have been urging communism as a cure for the ills of the world, as a remedy for wrong, as a means of penalizing exact justice.

Modern socialism dates from the "Communist Manifesto" published in 1848, by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels. Their outline of the socialist plan seized upon the thought of the world. Since that day it has been gathering the dissatisfied of the world and grouping them in a class, developing what they term a "class consciousness." Back of it has been an insistent, uninterrupted propaganda which has reached every corner of the globe. Billions of leaflets, pamphlets, tracts and books have been circulated. Millions of speeches have been made. Drawing rooms have been thrown open to it, highbrows have professed the faith, lowbrows have thundered the creed from soapboxes on the street corners. It has flourished best in Europe. It has furnished prime ministers. Its voice today in the parliaments of Europe is not a whisper—it is a shout. In the new governments which have come out of the war it is a militant, dominant factor. The bolshevism of Russia is pure socialism—literal communism. At this moment I am not writing of the methods of the bolsheviks. First, I want to make clear and simple their plan. Bolshevism is an effort to put into practice the doctrine preached by Plato, programmed by Marx.

When You Buy Poultry Feeds

Don't make it guess-work. You can eliminate the risk by our iron-clad guarantee. The money paid for Purina Chicken Chowder will be refunded if hens, when fed, lay fewer eggs than when fed with any other ration.

Most hens get too much grain, a large part of which goes into surplus yolks, which the hen absorbs. This makes the hen too fat and cuts down egg production. 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats and barley contain elements for 224 yolks, but only 154 whites. The feed of a laying hen should supply elements for both whites and yolks in equal quantity. Purina rations are rightly balanced. Based on Experiment Station tests, Purina Feeds contain the following:

Elements for Yolk White
Purina Scratch Feed 247.40 142.11
Purina Chicken Chowder 222.22 222.22
Scratch and Malt 229.24 229.24

Note the larger number and almost equal proportion of whites and yolks in the Purina balanced ration. Purina feeds are scientifically mixed and insure results. In Checkboard Bag.

IN any well managed business, if a branch is losing money, one of two things must be done—

Make adjustments so that the department will be self-supporting, or
Close up that end of the business.

Bell telephone operations in Pennsylvania are yielding no profits.

Certain units of the Bell System in other states have been granted increases in rates which make it possible for them to meet their expenses.

Today, Pennsylvania is not in that class and we in Pennsylvania cannot ask other states to shoulder our responsibilities. We must face our own problems.

In Pennsylvania right now, we are not making ends meet.

We have our own bills, our own payrolls, our own dividends to pay. We can't ask other states to pay them.

We must have increased rates in Pennsylvania or the service cannot be kept up.

No Waste Motion Here

The packing business is noted for the elimination of waste in manufacturing.

Swift & Company is equally effective in saving waste in the distribution of products.

From ranch or farm to your meat dealer there is no loss of time, money, material, or motion.

Four hundred branch sales houses in large cities and towns, hundreds of regular refrigerator car routes reaching small towns, all directed by wire from a central point, bring meat products from our packing plants located in producing areas, to retailers in all parts of the country in the best possible condition, in the least possible time, at the least possible cost, and over the most direct route.

The total expense, for manufacture, freight, and selling direct to the retailer, is less than three cents per pound on all meat sold.

Our profit from all sources is only a fraction of a cent per pound.

Competition compels this close-cut saving. Large volume of business, a well-balanced, nation-wide organization, and expert attention to details by men who know, make it possible.

Women Guard East Palace
Women police at Angkor Wat, for the most part old and unattractive, have long been in disrepute in Siam. As gatekeepers at the Women's palace in Bangkok they are assigned to a special location. One of their duties is to follow any visitor who visits the palace and come with him or her until their departure. They see that no mischief is done and that no one among the ladies of the court. The women police are armed in a distinctive uniform but are not armed.

Word to the Women.
It may not begat undue attention, but 210,162,913 needles were made in the United States last year. It could be pleasant mental recreation for a long evening to figure how many hours of labor, based on the proverb that a stitch in time saves nine, would have been saved the women of the nation if all these needles had been applied at the psychological moment.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring back color, youthfulness and lustre—Everybody is using it again.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantage of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe unproved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous—and you appear years younger.

OBITUARY

MRS. NANCY OWENS BROWN

Mrs. Nancy Owens Brown passed away at her home in Clearfield February 5th 1920, at the aged of 87 years. Death was due to pneumonia. She was the daughter of the late Robert and Elizabeth Hoover Owens and was born in Lawrence township, April 12, 1833.

On February 27, 1856 she was united in marriage to the late William R. Brown. To this union was born nine children of whom three are living to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted mother, viz: Miss Sue and Robert K., at home and Lewis K., of Cherrytree. She is also survived by two brothers, William and Milton Owens both of Lawrence township. She was a true Christian woman and highly respected by all who knew her. She was a life-long resident of this community and was laid to rest in the family plot in the Owens cemetery on Hillsdale, a part of the farm whereon she was born.

KNOX TOWNSHIP PIONEER DIES

John Erhard, an aged and well-known resident of Juniata, died at his home on West Tenth avenue on Sunday, March 7th at seven o'clock, after an illness of four weeks, his death being due to the infirmities of old age. He was born March 16th 1836, near New Millport, Clearfield county, and was the son of Christian and Jane (nee Patterson) Erhard. In his younger days he followed the occupation of farming in Clearfield county, but in later life he entered the lumber business, in Juniata, in partnership with his son Robert, under the firm name of John Erhard and Son. Mr. Erhard was engaged in the lumber business until four years ago, when he retired from active duties. He was a resident of Juniata for fourteen years. During his entire life time he was a member of the Lutheran church at New Millport.

On October 28th, 1862, he was married to Elizabeth Patterson, with whom he lived for fifty-eight years.

To this union there was born five children, three of whom died in infancy. Surviving are his son and daughter, Robert and Mrs. William Fink, both of Juniata, and nine grandchildren; two brothers and a sister, Alfred of Altoona, Pa.; Phillip, of Windber, Pa. and Mrs. G. W. Rex, of Palmyra, N. J.

After services at Juniata Wednesday evening, the body will be shipped to New Millport Thursday morning, for further services and burial.

DON'T NEGLECT THE LITTLE ONES

A snuffling, sneezing, coughing child certainly is a reflection upon the parents. To permit a child to suffer from a cold is more than negligence; it is cruel. A cold that hangs on weakens the system and can easily turn into something serious. Mrs. J. S. Pitson, 376 E. 158 St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I can't speak too highly of Foley's Honey and Tar. When my little girl has a cold I give her Foley's Honey and Tar and that stops her coughing in a little while." Children like it. It contains no opiates. Sold everywhere.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Buy Now While Deliveries Are Possible

Buy your Ford car now while deliveries are possible. There is only a limited, specified number of Ford cars allotted to this territory. You will be wise to buy one now while we can get cars to deliver. A signed order with us is your protection.

Even our small allotment of Ford cars is not shipped us until we have bonafide orders for them. This is because the demand for Ford cars all over the country is greater than the supply of production. So, don't depend on spring delivery.

Only so many Ford cars will be shipped into this territory only so many will be able to get Ford cars. If you would be forehanded and plan ahead, you will have us deliver you a Ford car as soon as possible. Then you will have it to use whenever you want it.

The Ford is an all year utility—in your home or business. Its serviceability, its ease of operation, its low cost of maintenance has made it such. It will serve you the year around. Spring and summer, autumn and winter, it is your servant; always ready to do your bidding.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

Frank H. Thompson, of Philadelphia, was a guest of his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thompson, several days this week.

Clyde Gates, foreman of the Curwensville Plumbing shop, has been confined to his home, corner of Walnut and George streets, for a week by an attack of grippe and flu.

Mrs. Lloyd Addleman has been confined to her home on George street by illness.

The ladies waiting room at the P. R. R. station is now kept open until the late night train leaves for Grampian. The room is in charge of Chief Clark who will see that ladies who are compelled to await the arrival of the train are not disturbed by "night owls." This move is a great accommodation for people along the line between this place and Grampian, who come here on the down train to shop and transact business during the evening hours.

Only two arrests were made by the police in this town during the month of February for violation of borough ordinances.

Fred Young, who has been seriously ill for several weeks from pneumonia is reported as not getting along toward recovery as fast as his many friends would wish.

L. Raymond Wingert who has been a clerk in the postoffice for almost three years, under Postmaster Kittleberger's administration has resigned his position the same to take effect on April 1st. He has made a most efficient and obliging clerk and it will be some time before his place can be so ably filled. He expects to enter one of Curwensville's stores as a clerk as soon as he is released from his post office duties.

The examinations for a clerkship in the Curwensville post office will be held next Saturday. There are seven applications who desire to take the examination.

Mrs. Fred Hopkins who came here to take care of her sister Mrs. Annie Cole, will return to her home in Pittsburgh within the next few days.

The family of George Patterson consisting of an invalid wife and two children, are down with the influenza. Mr. Patterson is ill himself but just forces himself to be on his feet that he might care for the others.

WINBURNE

Mrs. Lewis Larson died Friday evening, after an illness of about a week.

Anna Gazacko has been suffering from a severe attack of tonsillitis.

The dance held in the U. M. W. of A. hall Tuesday evening, was well attended and the music enjoyed by all.

Miss Jean Pierce made a business trip to Altoona Saturday.

Mary Dale is unable to be around on account of grippe.

Samuel Finburg and Oscar Leming were Sunday evening callers in our town.

Due to the conditions of the weather, no services were held in the Presbyterian church Sunday.

Miss Ellen Hagstrum, of Punxsunawney, is a guest at the Bronson home.

Mrs. John Henwood was called to Clearfield on account of the illness of her mother.

Mrs. McIndoo returned to her home after a visit with her daughter, of his place.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hoover, of Kyrtertown, spent a few days last week with relatives in Clearfield.

Miss Cora Mauer, one of the Kyrtertown teachers, attended the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Martin Rader, of Keewardin, last week.

Fred Sancoff is spending a few days with his aunt, Miss Kathryn Sancoff.

Richard Culver, of Brookville, visited at the home of his sister last week, Mrs. Charles Campbell and Mrs. Boyd McBath.

Mrs. George Northamer buried her mother, Mrs. Martin Rader last week at Keewardin.

Sure Death to Corns

"Gets-It" Makes 'Em Lose Their Grip and Lift Off Painlessly.

The first thing "Gets-It" does when it lands on a corn or callus is to snuff out the pain. Then it shrivels the corn or callus and loosens it.

Soon, it is almost ready to fall off. You help it just a little by lifting it off 'twixt thumb and finger. You don't even feel it, because there is no hurt left in it. Millions have proved it the cleanest, surest, safest and most pleasant method.

"Gets-It" the never failing, guaranteed money-back corn remover costs but a trifle at any drug store. It's by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. Sold in Clearfield and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Stewart Drug Company and Hyman.

PHILADELPHIA HAS AN ODOR SQUAD

PHILADELPHIA, March 9 (United Press).—The City of Brotherly Love has an "odor squad." A force of "smell detectives"—men with extraordinarily keen olfactory nerves—has been established to ferret out the sources of offensive smells in various sections of the city.

George H. Shaw, chief of the division of housing and sanitation, directs the work. The sanitary detectives work along the same line as a bloodhound. They go to the vicinity from which bad odors are reported, sniff the air until they get a bad whiff, and then trace it to its lair. The health authorities are then notified.

Miss Lena McNeil has accepted a position as teacher in the Boardman schools.

DOCTOR ADVISED CHANGE OF CLIMATE

Run Down and Lungs Hurt—Stayed Home and Gained 22 Pounds.

"In November, 1911, I had a severe cold and grippe, which left me with a bad cough. My lungs and shoulder blades hurt so I couldn't sleep and I finally had to give up my job and was ordered to change climate. In April, 1912, I began taking Milk's Emulsion. On the second bottle I could see a change. My appetite was better and I commenced to gain strength and weight. Now (August 23, 1912) I have used 23 bottles, have increased 22 pounds in weight and believe I am permanently cured."—W. F. Bourland, Route 1, Wolf City, Texas.

Mr. Bourland is fortunate in commencing to use Milk's Emulsion when he did. A run-down system invites disease. Milk's Emulsion costs nothing to try.

Milk's Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and cathartics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milk's Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened and is a powerful aid in restoring and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milk's Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.

INTERCHURCH WORLD
MOVEMENT COUNTY
UNITS FORMED

Organization of the Interchurch World Movement is nearing completion in every county in Western Pennsylvania and Dr. Morris E. Swartz of Harrisburg, state secretary of the movement has announced a tentative schedule of the conferences and towns in which they will be held. All protestant evangelical ministers of each county will be invited to these meetings at which the entire program of the great forward movement of churches allied in the Interchurch World Movement will be gone into detail and plans will be made for carrying out the program by organizations in the county and in the individual congregations.

Some idea of the immensity of the work to be done may be gained from the fact that there will hardly be less than 1000 workers in the smallest county in the state and that in many of the larger counties the organized church workers will number more than 10,000. These workers will be organized by denominations by city, township, borough and districts. The county conferences are to be held after Easter in compliance with the suggestion made at the pastors' state conference recently held in Harrisburg, so that there will be no interference with the great gathering on Easter Sunday.

Because of the difficulty of routing the nineteen teams of speakers who will conduct the 67 county conferences in Pennsylvania, the schedule as announced will not permit of much flexibility. The conditions of travel into some of the county seats make it necessary to start at one place if the schedule is to be maintained.

The schedule as completed so far, has planned for conference: in Waynesburg, Green county, April 6; Washington, Washington county, April 7; Greensburg, Westmoreland county, April 8; Uniontown, Fayette county, April 9; Butler, Butler county, April 6; Allegheny county, town not yet named, April 7; New Brighton, Beaver county, April 8; New Castle, Lawrence county, April 9; Franklin, Venango county, April 6; Meadville, Crawford county, April 7; Sharon, Mercer county, April 8; Erie, Erie county, April 9; Warren, Warren county, April 6; Tionesta, Forrest county, April 7; Kittanning, Armstrong county, April 8; Clarion, Clarion county, April 9; Indiana, Indiana county, April 6; Punxsutawney, Jefferson county, April 7; Ridgway, Elk county, April 8; Bradford, McKean county, April 9; Johnstown, Cambria county, April 6; Altoona, Blair county, April 7; Clearfield county, April 8; Bellefonte, Centre county, April 9; Lock Haven, Clinton county, April 9; Huntingdon, Huntingdon county, April 6; Bedford county, April 7; Somerset, Somerset county, April 8.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your back hurts or bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because it is so much a part of our food is so much filled with uric acid. The kidneys strive to filter out the uric acid from the blood, but when they become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy spells, upset stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jai Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is

Why Druggists Recommend Swamp-Root

For many years druggists have watched with great interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine. It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once. However, if you first wish to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention The Clearfield Progress.
